It is our pleasure to present The Provident Bank Foundation's first showcase of community giving. Each year, we are proud to support not-for-profit groups, institutions, schools and other community organizations that provide valuable programs and services within The Provident Bank's footprint.

We encourage you to take a moment to learn about a few of these worthy organizations. The stories included here are but a small sampling of the exceptional work they do to enhance and improve the communities in which we live and work. In these difficult economic times, not-for-profits are working tirelessly to ensure they can continue to provide the same level of service to those who need it the most.

We are a small foundation. However, in our eight-year history, we have partnered with more than 1,000 organizations and have given more than $15 million in support. Since the inception of the Foundation, we have gone to great lengths to ensure we are adapting to the changing needs of our communities.

The Provident Bank Foundation is honored to support these organizations and to highlight their truly good works. By featuring some of their initiatives, we hope you will be inspired to get involved and support the organizations making a difference in your community.

2010 Giving

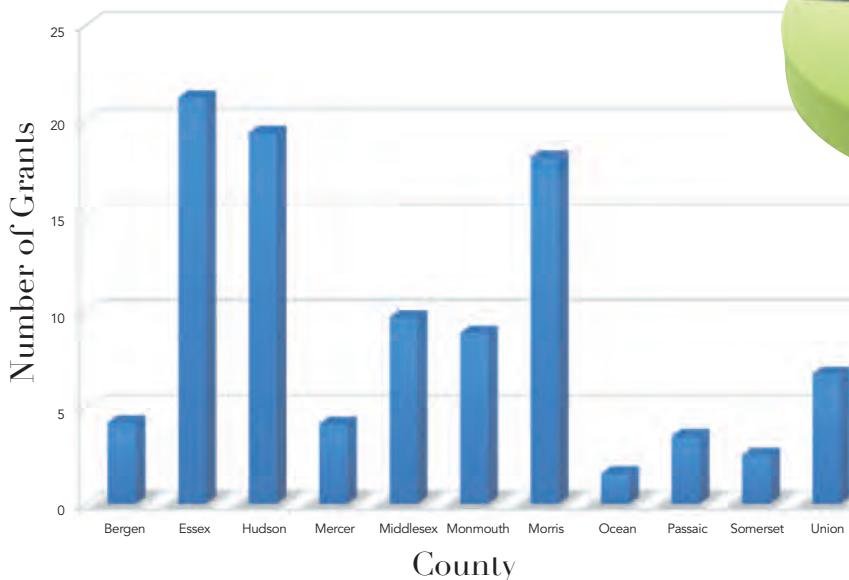

For more than 170 years, The Provident Bank has strongly supported its communities and in 2003, it increased its commitment by creating The Provident Bank Foundation. The Foundation was funded through a $24 million donation set aside from money raised during the initial public offering of Provident Financial Services, Inc. Headquartered in Jersey City, The Provident Bank Foundation continues to support and serve the communities within the bank's footprint, which includes more than 80 branches spanning 11 counties in northern and central New Jersey.

Amount donated since inception: $15,000,000+

Average grant amount: $7,500

Largest gift: $1,000,000

Giving by Region

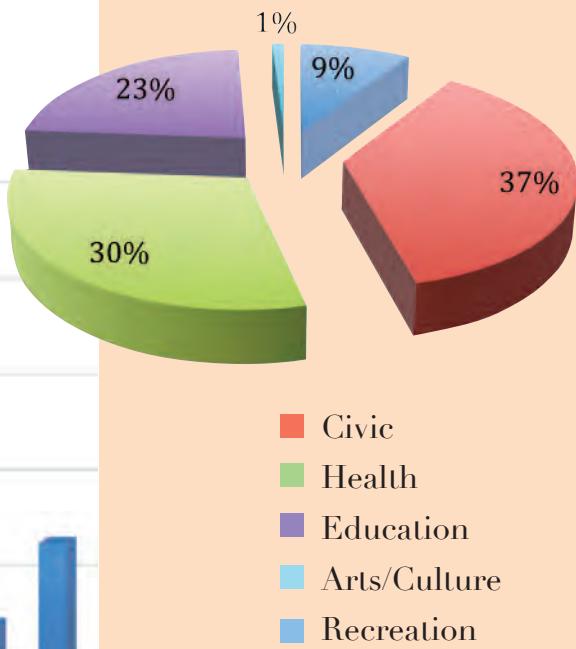

Last year alone, we provided funding to more than 200 organizations. It's important to us to support a broad cross-section of services and communities.

Our Mission

The Provident Bank Foundation was established to support not-for-profit groups, institutions, schools, and other organizations that provide services in New Jersey communities. The purpose of The Provident Bank Foundation is to provide funding in support of charitable causes and community development activities in communities served by The Provident Bank. The Provident Bank Foundation is committed to enhancing the quality of life for New Jersey communities.

Recreation

Greenville American Recreational
Assoc. - $2,500

To help the Greenville American Recreational Association in Jersey City keep score, The Provident Bank Foundation donated a new scoreboard after the league's 22-year-old model became inoperable. The new scoreboard at Byrne-Keenan Memorial Field in Jersey City will enhance the experience for 360 players ages 4-12, and the league will now have the ability to host some North Jersey District 6 Cal Ripken Baseball Tournaments.

New Jersey
Roadrunners -
$4,500

The New Jersey Roadrunners AAU basketball team in Parsippany, offers inner-city kids more than just a safe place to practice. It integrates athletics with academic support and general counseling to help prepare kids for college and beyond. The Provident Bank Foundation donated $4,500 to the team to give student athletes a chance to be observed by college recruiters and help them develop into responsible, young adults.

4 RECREATION GRANTS

Roseville Sports
Group - $2,000

Recognizing the importance for young children to be physically active, The Provident Bank Foundation donated $2,000 to the Roseville Sports Group, in Newark, which operates the North Newark Little League, part of Major League Baseball's RBI (Reviving Baseball in Inner Cities) Program. The grant helped more than 400 inner city kids ages 5-18 participate in its Little League baseball season from April through November, at a reasonable cost.

Education

DonorsChoose.org - $13,000

Who knew a charitable donation made 3,000 miles away could have an impact here in the Garden State?

The Provident Bank Foundation was recently inspired by an amazing act of philanthropy in California, where a donor decided to fund classroom project requests for teachers in her home state. Every project in California listed on DonorsChoose.org – an online charity that connects donors with classrooms in need – was funded with a single donation.

The Foundation wanted to make a local impact in one of the communities it serves. Recognizing that many public schools in Middlesex County are in need of materials and supplies, the Foundation donated $13,000 to fund the entire wish list of classroom projects in the county listed on the website.

"We wanted to make a significant impact locally. With budget cuts hitting schools hard, we decided to cover the costs of all the Middlesex County projects and help enhance classroom and learning experiences for public school students," said Kendall Warsaw, executive director of The Provident Bank Foundation.

DonorsChoose.org allows public school teachers from across the nation to post classroom project requests ranging from microscopes for biology labs to field trips and art supplies. A donor can browse project requests online and give any amount.

EDUCATION GRANTS

William Paterson University

William Paterson University Foundation - $10,000

Once a project reaches the funding goal, they deliver the materials to the requesting school.

"We are grateful for this relationship with The Provident Bank Foundation. We hope their act of philanthropy will inspire others to take part in funding classroom projects in other parts of the country," said Alisa Catellier, partnership director for DonorsChoose.org.

The Foundation's grant came on the heels of a $5,000 donation made earlier this year, which funded 12 projects throughout New Jersey and helped more than 1,000 students. The latest donation funded 29 projects and helped 1,451 students.

Improving financial literacy has become an increasingly important initiative in New Jersey. To prepare and inspire students to succeed financially, The Provident Bank Foundation donated $10,000 to the William Paterson University Foundation in Wayne, for the school's Community Financial Literacy Program. The week-long summer course teaches high school students about important financial topics, such as the fundamentals of saving and having sound credit, personal financial planning, taxes and investments. Sixteen high school students from Paterson, Passaic and Wayne participated in this year's program.

Independent College Fund of New Jersey - $5,000

Many returning veterans need assistance finding jobs and educational opportunities. The Independent College Fund of New Jersey in Summit, which represents the state's 14 independent colleges and universities, is helping returning military men and women pursue a college education. To partner in this effort, The Provident Bank Foundation donated $5,000 to help develop a veteran's education website for prospective students that will provide them with easy access to information about the member colleges, connect them with the school's veteran coordinators and help get them on a path to higher education.

Bayonne Board of Education - $9,000

Some Bayonne students attended a summer program last year to get a head start on the school year, and the years to come. The Provident Bank Foundation donated $9,000 to the Bayonne School District Proyecto Science Consortium Program, which allowed 27 seventh-graders to attend a five-week long science, mathematics, and technology program. The program took place at New Jersey City University and was designed by NASA to attract minority and female students to careers in mathematics, science and technology.

*Dear Provident Bank Foundation,
By providing my class with the exposure to a variety of music for both educational and recreational use, you have provided them with a new way to learn. A way to make learning fun and exciting.*

With gratitude, Mrs. S.

Education

Essex County College Foundation - $25,000

In today's challenging economic times, tuition assistance is needed more than ever. For students pursuing a degree at Essex County College in Newark, The Provident Bank Foundation donated $25,000 as part of its $100,000 four-year pledge to the school's charitable foundation. The grant helped provide scholarships to students enrolled in the Fall 2010 semester. Over the last two years, the Essex County College Foundation has provided tuition assistance to more than 160 students from nearly every municipality in Essex County.

NEW JERSEY SEEDS (Newark)

$20,000 as part of an $80,000 multi-year pledge for its Scholars Program, a 14-month enrichment program for high-achieving, low-income youth to help prepare them for placement at academically selective day and boarding schools.

DREW UNIVERSITY (Madison)

$10,000 for Newark teens to participate in Drew's summer college program to give students a taste of the college experience.

LITTLE KIDS ROCK (Cedar Grove)

$2,500 to support its free music instruction for students in underfunded schools where music programs were either eliminated or threatened by budget cuts.

TEANECK PUBLIC SCHOOLS (Teaneck)

$2,000 for the Department of Specialized services to help assist disabled students in schools.

EL PRIMER PASO (Dover)

$3,000 to support the preschool's program to prepare English language learners from low-income communities for success in school.

ALL SAINTS COMMUNITY SERVICE AND DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION (Hoboken)

$7,500 for its Jubilee Center, an afterschool enrichment program for children in Hoboken's public housing projects.

JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT OF NEW JERSEY (Princeton)

$5,000 for its "Women's Future Leadership Forum," where female executives serve as mentors to high school females, educate them about personal finance and the importance of financial literacy.

Social & Civic

Grameen America borrower starts her own business.

Grameen America - $10,000

An opportunity can change everything.

That's just what Grameen America and The Provident Bank Foundation hope to give those living in poverty – a chance to earn a living and change their lives.

The Provident Bank Foundation donated $10,000 to Grameen America, a not-for-profit based in New York City that aims to alleviate poverty by creating an environment for low-income families to thrive. The organization provides microloans to individuals who wish to start or expand a small business.

"The Provident Bank Foundation's support helps us provide low-income families with a chance to earn a living. We empower them to invest in income-generating activities and become self-employed by starting and growing their own small business," said Stephen Vogel, CEO of Grameen America.

Here's how it works: Grameen America provides small loans to peer groups of five people. Upon completing a financial training program and opening a savings account, each borrower receives a loan to start or expand a business and generate income. Through weekly meetings with Grameen America's center managers, borrowers repay the loan, develop financial literacy, increase savings and build credit through regular repayments.

"Grameen America's microfinance program is critical in helping borrowers, who otherwise would not have the opportunity, develop essential skills needed to succeed financially. We are proud to support the program and look forward to its expansion into New Jersey," said Kendall Warsaw.

New City Kids - $4,000

When considering jobless urban teenagers, New City Kids, in Jersey City, doesn't see the stereotypical images of unmotivated teens loitering on the street. Instead, they see professionally-dressed kids lined up at their door, hungry for an opportunity and seeking a sense of accomplishment. The Provident Bank Foundation supported the Teen Life Internship Program at New City Kids with a $4,000 grant to place Jersey City teens in mentor-supported jobs and offer job training, performance evaluation, life skills seminars and career exposure.

Boys & Girls Clubs - $17,500

With more than 4,000 clubs nationwide, Boys & Girls Clubs offer access to safe, enriching and educational after-school programs to economically-disadvantaged children. This year, The Provident Bank Foundation supported the Hawthorne and Perth Amboy clubs.

- Boys & Girls Club of Perth Amboy – $10,000 to help expand its digital arts program.
- Boys & Girls Club of Hawthorne – $7,500 to support its “Triple Play” program: eating right, keeping fit and forming positive relationships.

Interfaith Food Pantry - $12,000

With one in five families in New Jersey struggling with hunger, food pantries are facing an increase in visitors and need more assistance than ever. The Provident Bank Foundation donated $12,000 to the Interfaith Food Pantry in Morristown, to support its “Harvesting Miracles” campaign to build a new warehouse and distribution center in Parsippany. The new facility will have offices, a loading dock and a full-service warehouse with refrigeration and freezers.

SOCIAL & CIVIC
102 GRANTS

PROJECT LINUS NJ, INC. (Keyport) $2,000 to help coordinate workshops for school children to create 1,500 handmade fleece and cotton blankets for children suffering from serious illness and trauma.

URBAN ANGELS (Jersey City) $10,000 to support “Project Jumpstart,” a transitional education and occupation program for families receiving assistance from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families.

RARITAN SENIOR CENTER (Raritan) $1,000 for its senior programs, including discussion, education, entertainment, health, nutrition and recreation activities.

INTERSECT FUND (New Brunswick) $5,000 for its Entrepreneur University program, a 10-week training course that helps low-income entrepreneurs learn how to build a strong business.

PROJECT LIVE (Newark) $5,000 to help furnish its 21-unit special supportive needs housing project in Newark with high-quality, durable living room and bedroom furniture.

Culture & Arts

Parents and children at The State Theatre's
"Milk & Cookies" show.

The State Theatre - $30,000

Storytelling is an essential part of every childhood. Everyone remembers being read fairy tales, "make believe" stories and the fun and excitement that came with it. One organization in New Jersey is taking the art of storytelling to a whole new level – combining the fun of watching, listening and interacting with the arts.

The State Theatre's "Milk & Cookies" series is a free, interactive storytelling experience for children ages 3-8 and their parents or guardians. Filled with puppetry, music and more, "Milk & Cookies" invites young people to participate in a dynamic and educational program, all while enjoying an afternoon snack.

For the past three years, The Provident Bank Foundation has supported the State Theatre in New Brunswick and its "Milk & Cookies" series. This year, the Foundation gave a $10,000 grant to the program – the final installment in its three-year, $30,000 pledge.

"My daughter Jadyn has a diagnosis of classic autism and is 7 years old. It was wonderful to see her interact with other children in an environment where she wasn't being judged by other children or their parents. She could just be herself and be silly, jump around and sing," said Michelle Waiser of Bridgewater.

"Milk & Cookies" is comprised of six events – three in the fall and three in the spring, and are offered once a month on select Saturdays.

"We are so grateful to The Provident Bank Foundation for its continued support of 'Milk & Cookies.' This is a valuable program that we are pleased to offer local children who will not only learn, but will have fun, too," said Kelly Blithe, director of public relations for the State Theatre.

Community Children's Museum - $2,000

More than 150 Dover kindergarten and first-grade students explored the Community Children's Museum in Dover, thanks to a $2,000 grant provided by The Provident Bank Foundation.

The contribution provided Dover Elementary School children with free admission and transportation to the museum. The field trip focused on science with an emphasis on the planets, the sun and the moon. The students also had time to interact with the "Electricity Without the Shock" exhibit.

Visual Arts Center of New Jersey - $7,500

To help foster the appreciation, enjoyment and practice of art, The Provident Bank Foundation donated $7,500 to the Visual Arts Center of New Jersey in Summit. The grant helped provide enhanced arts education and exhibition programs to eighth grade students from Elizabeth and Jersey City. The programs not only introduce students to contemporary art, but to the artists that produce it.

Paper Mill Playhouse - $7,500

Each year, the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn adopts four New Jersey High Schools to participate in its "Adopt-A-School Project," a unique program aimed at bringing the performing arts directly to underserved high schools. The Provident Bank Foundation donated $7,500 to the program this year to help students embark on a sequential, four-year program in which they observe main stage productions, participate in workshops at the theater, produce their own show and finally, as seniors, write critiques of main stage shows.

27 CULTURE & ARTS GRANTS

INSTITUTE OF MUSIC FOR CHILDREN (Elizabeth) $2,500 to support its "Afterschool Institute," a program providing children ages 5-18 with group and private lessons in a variety of art forms: instrumental music, drama, dance, visual arts and film making.

NEW JERSEY PERFORMING ARTS CENTER (Newark) $7,500 to support three arts education programs, including live performances at NJPAC, artist-in-residency instruction in schools and youth arts training programs for the area's most talented youth.

PLAYWRIGHTS THEATRE OF NEW JERSEY (Madison) $1,500 to help bring seasoned teaching artists into classrooms and community groups where students participate in playwriting residencies with professional writers.

COUNT BASIE THEATRE (Red Bank) $7,000 to support its "Let's Face It" campaign to fund the renovation of the theatre's exterior.

Health & Wellness

Chilton Hospital Foundation & Raritan Bay Medical Center Foundation - $22,500

While the primary role of any hospital employee – be it physician, nurse or staff – is delivering exceptional healthcare to patients, employees also are helping to grow and strengthen their hospitals by giving back.

Employee philanthropy programs give staff opportunities to support projects that benefit the hospital system, employees and the local community.

This year, The Provident Bank Foundation made donations to employee giving programs at Chilton Hospital in Pompton Plains and Raritan Bay Medical Center in Perth Amboy, through their foundations to help make their gifts go further.

To encourage more employees to participate in Chilton's employee giving program, The Provident Bank Foundation donated $10,000 to the annual campaign to act as an incentive to grow the fund. Following the donation, 30 percent of employees joined the annual campaign – up from 15 percent last year – bringing the total to $55,000. Employees designated the funds for Chilton's Comprehensive Breast Center.

Making a similar impact, The Provident Bank Foundation donated $12,500 to the Raritan Bay Medical Center Foundation. Additional funds raised through employee giving increased by 34 percent, totaling $47,000, and supported all departments through a mini-grant program. Each department could apply for up to $1,500 for equipment or supplies.

"We're proud to partner with employees and believe this truly speaks to their dedication and belief in their hospitals," said Kendall Warsaw.

American Cancer Society - $25,000

Coping with a cancer diagnosis and treatment is a frightening and emotional journey. Patient navigators with the American Cancer Society in Springfield, work within hospitals to provide timely answers and support to cancer patients and their caregivers and visit patients in chemotherapy infusion centers, clinic waiting areas and radiation oncology departments. A $25,000 grant from The Provident Bank Foundation allowed the organization to recruit, train and mobilize 14 patient navigators to serve more than 3,500 patients in seven major cancer centers.

Visiting Homemaker Services of Hudson County - $5,000

For many seniors, remaining at home is important in maintaining dignity and independence. To help make that possible for seniors in Hudson County,

The Provident Bank Foundation donated $5,000 to the Visiting Homemaker Services of Hudson County in Jersey City, for its social and emotional support group for blind and visually-impaired seniors. The program is designed to increase the chances of seniors living a more independent, healthier life at home by improving their safety and self-confidence.

The Wellness Community - Diney Goldsmith Center - $10,000

Social and emotional support is an essential complement to medical care for anyone living with cancer. The Wellness Community – The Diney Goldsmith Center in Eatontown, helps people and families affected by cancer enhance their quality of life through free support and educational programs. The Provident Bank Foundation donated $10,000 to support more than 80 programs offered each month at the Eatontown and Toms River facilities.

42 HEALTH & WELLNESS GRANTS

Looking Forward

We believe that strong communities grow from strong foundations. And, as a strong foundation, we believe it's important to get back to basics. The economy has been challenging for all of us. It has been particularly difficult for not-for-profit agencies that provide direct services to New Jersey residents.

As a result, we have adjusted our program areas to more effectively serve and support the diverse needs of our communities, the health and wellness of our families and the future of our children.
